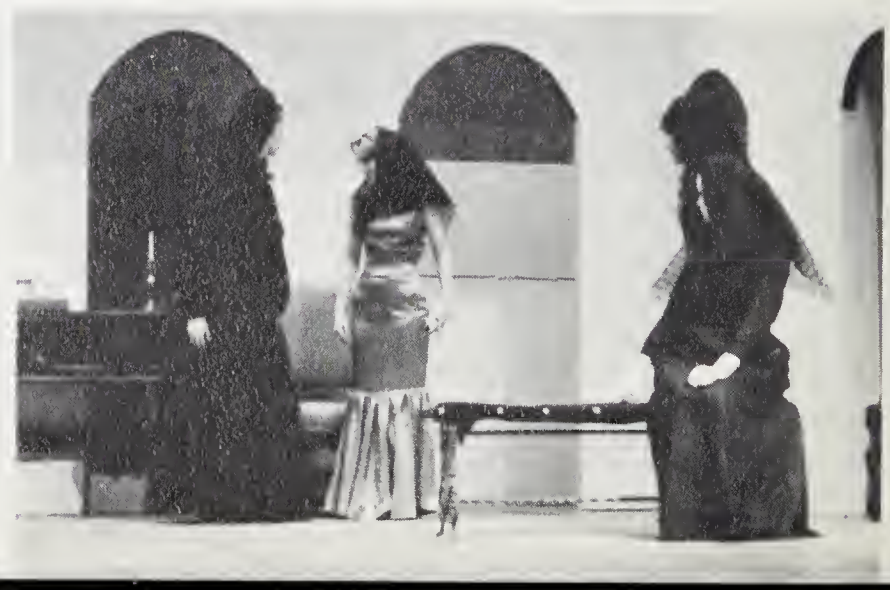
Realism is the Keynote

The House of Bernarda Alba

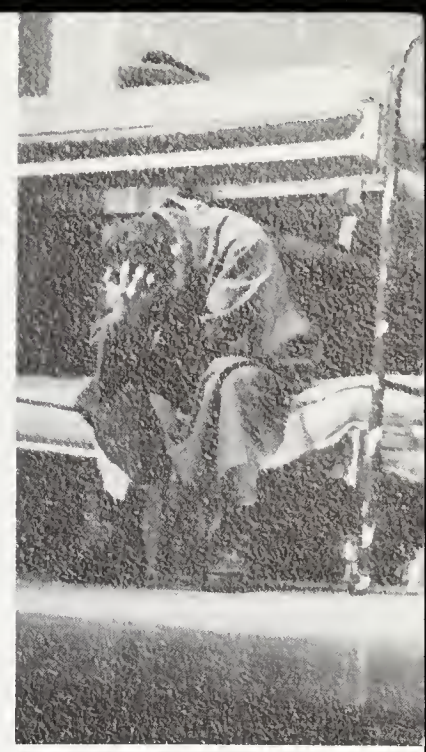
by Federico Garcia Lorca

Directed by Jenkin David

An all-female cast presented a stirring interpretation of Garcia Lorca's tragedy concerned with the theme of frustrated love, fusing poetry and dramatic realism into a tense and suspenseful play.



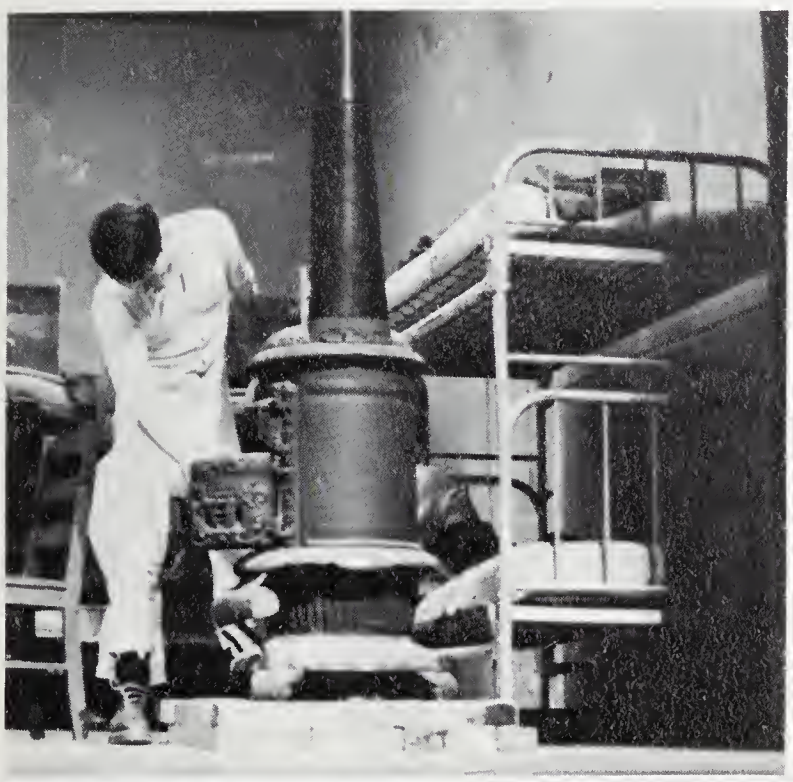
in Park Players' Spring Dramas



Stalag 17

by D. J. Bevan
and E. Trzcinski

Directed by Jenkin David



An all-male cast performed this play of mystery and intrigue, bringing to life the memorable characters of Reed, Price, Animal and Stosh caught up in a situation involving the question of a man's guilt or innocence--who was the spy among the American soldiers in a German prison camp? Add to this a good dose of humor, and you come out with an entertaining comedy-melodrama well-suited to the Park stage.

One student remarked, "Can you imagine we really had so much fun on CAMPUS, and on SUNDAY, too??
